According to § Public Order Act
(1993:1617) § local regulations

- Special conditions
- The organizer shall employ as many officials as necessary to maintain safety and order among the participants. Officials shall wear vests, shirts or similar so that their function is clearly visible. Officials shall be at least 18 years of age.
 - The gathering must not obstruct traffic or access to adjacent buildings.
 - Accessibility for emergency vehicles must be ensured.
 - Any banners, placards and similar items brought along must be removed by the organizer after the demonstration has ended.
 - Existing fire hydrants, cable ducts, switch cabinets and the like, as well as road signs and traffic signals within the area, must be accessible and must not be covered.
 - Instructions and orders given by police officers must be followed.
 - The permit and its attachments must be presented to an employee of the Police Authority upon request.

Information_____

- According to the Public Order Act (1993:1617), the organizer is responsible for ensuring good order at the gathering. Good order means, for example, that the sound level/loudspeaker sound level is adjusted and directed so that it does not disturb public order.
- The organizer is reminded of the Swedish Public Health Agency's general advice on high noise levels (FoHMFS 2014:15).
- Being an official does not give you the authority to act as a flag guard or direct traffic.
- The permit does not confer any right to drive or park vehicles in violation of applicable traffic regulations.
- Restrictions on public gatherings and public events announced by the government (or other parties authorized by the government) always apply, even if otherwise stated in your permit from the Police Authority. You as the organizer are expected to stay updated on any restrictions that are introduced. The Police Authority does not make any assessments of which infection control measures are appropriate to take at a particular event.

How to appeal the Police Authority's decision

If you are dissatisfied with the decision, you can appeal it.

An appeal must be in writing and must be received by the Police Authority no later than three weeks from the day you received the decision.

Please state the following in your appeal:

1. Case file number (e.g. A123.123/2000)
2. Name, personal/organizational number, address and telephone number.
3. What change you would like to see in the decision.

For contact information, see polisen.se.

The Police Authority then sends the appeal to the Administrative Court for review.
